Tulane

We arrive at Tulane as young, timid freshman and we leave Tulane as mature, outgoing seniors. We were anxious to make friends, enjoy campus events, explore the city, and be pushed to our limits. When we leave Tulane, the memories will follow and we will continue to be challenged. The friendships that we found, the lessons that we learned, the experiences that we had prepares us for what lies ahead.

Tulane has seen many changes over the years but none so great as this year. Tulane has a new business school, a new football coach and athletic director, and new football and baseball fields. The University Center as well as the dorms have been renovated and revamped. The incoming freshman have higher academic standards and the outgoing seniors have a diploma that is worth more than ever before.

New Orleans

The city of New Orleans, the crescent city. New Orleans has been referred to in songs, movies, books and television. But you don't understand or get a feel of New Orleans until you live here, experience Mardi Gras, or get lost in the Quarters. You need to experience the romance and mystique, it's splendor and revelry. The casualness and relaxed attitudes of the people give the city its uniqueness. New Orleans is rich in culture and in pride. New Orleans offers much more than the Quarters, Mardi Gras and Jazz Fest. There is the Dome, the lakefront, and St. Charles Avenue. If there isn't a parade on a weekend, there is a festival somewhere near-by. Crayfish, oysters, shrimp, crabs, jambalaya and gumbo are cooking everywhere. The city and the people of the city never sleep. They carry the attitude of "le bon temps roulex."

Academics

Academics is a thorough investment. It seems obvious that the largest investment made is by the students: money, time and energy are entrusingly put forth and expended in order to obtain a most prized possession — a degree.

To achieve this, students find they have to abound with energy to survive the academic demands. There never seems to be enough time. Attempting to read all the assigned chapters . . . denying hours of sleep to squeeze in some early morning study hours . . . extracurricular activities deleting free time . . . fighting nods during endless lectures . . . running on a wild goose chase through the library trying to find that last book to complete a research project . . . attempting to be jovial after a sleepless night of study. It all appears quite costly, even for an education.

But do not let this arouse the martyr in you. Other investments are provided on behalf of your education too. Faculty and staff are chosen for the unique insights they can offer in their respective fields. To be a faculty member, one is required to engage in research. Often new leads and breakthroughs are made in such areas as medicine, engineering and science. Not only does this aid in solving world-wide problems but it also upgrades the reputation of our school as well as the regard of our graduates. This is only achieved through the continuously painstaking and enterprising work of our faculty.

The staff, including those who work in the president's office to the employees at Bruff, has chosen Tulane as their working establishment. Just as the students' incentive is their diploma, the staff also has incentives which compel them to uphold the high ideals which have been traditionally set before them.

As we look around and observe the outcome, we can see that the accumulated interest from the investments is exceedingly profitable.

The faculty of the Newcomb physical education department encourages all students to become involved in the many activities offered — a diverse variety ranging from exercise and conditioning classes to a dance company. The department's goals include serving students and teaching skills, techniques and knowledge which will offer lifetime enjoyment and physical fitness. Such facilities as a gym, pool, weight room and dance studio are available for use by Newcomb and Tulane students. Elizabeth Delery, chairwoman of the department, works to sustain the high standard of physical fitness desirable in the P.E. classrooms.

The Murphy Institute

The Murphy Institute exists to help students and faculty understand political and economic problems we all face and think about as citizens. More importantly, it exists to help us see why and how these problems have come to be so closely interrelated.

The unprecedented economic changes of our time, together with our deeply troubled political history, make us ask how economic activities and institutions have interacted with political forces to shape people's lives. Some of the questions that concern us are high on the current public agenda. What is the proper role of government in economic affairs? How has the growth of largescale private business enterprise affected the workings of democratic societies? Can we create public orders that are both politically just and economically efficient? Other issues not so high on policy makers' agenda, yet equally important: the role of cultural values in shaping the interaction of political and economic processes, the morality of market societies, the effect of legal institutions in determining the division of economic resources, the character and impact of nationalism.

Many of these problems are not new. The close interrelationship of politics and economics was recognized by the first self-avowed "political economists" of the eighteenth century, including Adam Smith. In recent decades, however, the complexities of these questions have prompted the development of new fields of research and new modes of analysis. All of this calls for giving teachers and students alike new perspectives in their study of politics and economics.

The Murphy Institute was established in 1980 to help meet these needs. It supports an interdisciplinary undergraduate program in political economy which brings together economists, political scientists, historians, philosophers, and sociologists, all committed to transcending the traditional boundaries of their disciplines in a common search for new insights and new ways of studying the interrelations of politics and economics.

To enrich Tulane's undergraduate program in political economy, the Murphy Institute hosts lectures and seminars by prominent visiting scholars and public figures. It also brings to Tulane for one semester each year the Murphy Institute Distinguished Visiting Professor, whose work is of common interest to students and faculty in the undergraduate program.

The ultimate goal of the Murphy Institute and its various programs is to serve as forum where Tulane faculty and students will be free to question dogma and to develop the novel ways of thinking crucial to understanding the political and economic realities of our time.

Tulane psychologist Jeff Lockman spends much of his time studying how infants react to toys.

Lockman, along with graduate students Laurie Hefferman and James McHale, is among many researchers who are finding out that children appropriately relate their actions to objects at a much earlier age than previously thought.

"The question is when do infant actions become non-random and appropriate for the objects," Lockman said. Appropriate action would be shaking a toy that rattles or squeezing a soft toy. We're finding that even at six months of age infants' play is appropriate to the object they are exploring."

Until recently, psychologists thought it was between nine and 12 months before children learned that hard objects are to be banged and soft ones touched more gently.

Lockman's findings, as well as those by many other psychologists, will be included in Action in Social Context: Perspectives on Early Development, a book he is co-editing with University of Texas professor Nancy Hazen.

Lockman is also exploring how mothers help their infants discover objects and what actions mothers use when playing with the infants. Video tapes show that in playing with their babies, mothers would "direct the babies" fingers across a soft object and actually take their hands and help them bang (a hard toy)." Lockman tapes children for about six minutes, then goes over the tape in slow motion and codes each of the child's actions. Code categories he watches for are banging, squeezing, mouthing, touching and whether the child used one hand or two.

One reason for studying this is to estimate the developmental milestones for infants. With this as a guide, physicians and psychologists can better diagnose when a child is not developing properly.

At the end of this study, Lockman is hoping to have some practical information to pass on to parents about how children develop and how to play with their babies, especially their handicapped babies.

From watching the tapes, Lockman has already concluded that parental involvement is critical and is trying to show that babies are a lot more competent than people have given them credit for in the past.

In an effort to make the faculty section more interesting, we wanted to introduce you to a few of the outstanding members who have recently been recognized for their work. It is a necessary requirement for professors to endeavor in research in their respective field sometime during their employment at Tulane. This gives the faculty an opportunity to pursue dreams, to search for answers, to prove hypotheses — all with the aid of Tulane facilities. Funding is also available through several agencies for those projects which require greater amounts of money for extensive travel or equipment. Tulane's office of sponsored projects is a department solely dedicated to the purpose of finding funds so the faculty can concentrate on their research rather than dealing with technicalities such as approval, financing, etc.

We at the Jambalaya feel that you should be informed of these extra endeavors made by your professors. Won't you be surprised when your engineering professor creates a new satellite or your psychology professor makes a major breakthrough in treating the mentally ill, or . . .

This research increases not only the respect for Tulane as a learning institution but also the value of your degree as a Tulane graduate.

Regeneration Reserach —

A Hopeful Outlook

The idea of growing back severed limbs and restoring their function is a fascinating concept. But for some Tulane scientists, human regeneration may become a reality.

Assistant Professor of Biology, Charles Ide, PhD., has been studying the process by which the retinas in embryo frogs can regenerate. Ide said he hopes his results will provide a meaningful look into human applications as well as aid in cancer research.

The main focus in the project so far, has been to get at the cell biology and the principles of retinal regeneration. The two major events that occur in this regeneration are wound healing and the physical growth that restores the size of the retina.

Ide said that examining the early stages of wound healing is crucial in understanding the cell make-up of regeneration.

In successful wound healing, the retinal tissue rounds up and the original patterning scheme in the cells are retained. Normal vision is restored.

In some situations, the retinal cells move around and pick up new neighboring cells which in turn divide to form regeneration growth. Because the positional information needed to trigger nerve pulses is sometimes lost, normal vision is not always realized.

It is the cell movement, however, that allows Ide to study closely how the cell patterning process works, how the differences in lost tissue are reconciled, and how the physical growth occurs. According to Ide, an embryonic frog can regenerate a full retina, starting with only one-sixth of its original size, in two to three weeks.

At this point in the research, Ide and his colleagues know which regions in the retina regenerate and also the role cell division plays in the patterning process. By further studying the molecular aspects of retinal regenerations, they hope to draw a parallel between the cell biology of regeneration and that of cancer.

The researchers plan to distinguish the genes that are active in regeneration from those that cause cancerous growth. Hopefully, they will also be able to turn these genes "on" or "off" depending on their connection to the molecules.

Ide and fellow Tulane researcher, Robert Tompkins, have been working on their project for a year and a half with a three year grant of 219,000 dollars from the National Science Foundation.

Ide said he hopes the N.S.F. grant will be renewed so he can probe further into the molecular code of the regeneration process.

Hackney Teaching Award Winner Larry Powell

J. D. Will

This year's winner of the Sheldon Hackney Award for Excellence in Teaching doesn't even consider himself the best teacher in his own department.

The university's top teaching award, named in honor of Tulane's twelfth president, was presented to Lawrence Powell, professor of history, during an August welcoming convocation for 1300 freshmen.

In addition to his teaching load, Powell chaired the Committee on Fellowships and Scholarships for the past two years. During that time, Tulane graduates won three Rhodes Scholarships and a host of other prestigious awards. As their mentor, Powell deserves much of the credit.

Powell, who won the Tulane Associated Student Body Award for Teaching Excellence in 1981, says his strength "is probably as a lecturer. I put a lot of time into it and never go into class unprepared.

Powell was Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Maryland and received a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship to continue his studies. His postgraduate degrees are from Yale University, where he was a lecturer and associate editor of the Frederick Douglass Papers.

Powell came to Tulane in 1978 as an assistant professor, becoming an associate professor in 1980. He was John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellow in 1982-1983 and won the Yale University Press Governor's Award in 1982 for his book New Masters: Northern Planters During the Civil War and Reconstruction.

He was named by President Eamon Kelly last spring to head the Select Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics and Academics and has put off a planned sabbatical until after the end of the year, when the committee is slated to submit its recommendations on the role of athletics within the university.

Powell is the fifth Tulane faculty member to win the Hackney Teaching Award.

The President's Message

You have been fortunate to experience Tulane at a time of unprecedented academic and financial strength.

This year the University continued to attract highly qualified students from the nation to all of its schools and colleges. The quality of our students can perhaps best be illustrated by Tulane's having its fourth Rhodes Scholar in three years, placing the University in the company of only three other private universities in the nation which can boast four or more Rhodes Scholars in three consecutive selections. The importance and variety of sponsored research conducted by our faculty ranks Tulane among the top 30 private universities in the United States in research and development funding.

An important element of academic excellence is the presence of renowned visiting professors, artists, and statesmen, which stimulates intellectual and cultural activity among students and faculty alike, and this year we enjoyed appearances by Alison Lurie, Vernon Walters,

Robert McFarlane, and Jonathan Miller.

Physical developments on campus are changing the Tulane landscape. The new Business School is rising swiftly, and the student apartment complex will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1986. The University Center has had a thorough renovation, and ground breaking for the new Engineering School will take place before the end of 1986.

Although the Campaign for Tulane reached, indeed exceeded, its goal of $150 million in 1985, fund raising momentum continued unabated this year, while the endowment continued to grow, and we completed our seventh year of operating in the black.

We take pride in the University's advancements, and you may share in our satisfaction, for as Tulane's stature is heightened, so is the currency of your degree.

— Eamon Kelly

This crossword puzzle symbolizes the departments of Tulane which have contributed to making your years here a special time in your life. A ONCE IN A LIFETIME experience.

Although a crossword is far and away not a once in a lifetime thing it does have similar characteristics to college life.

Frustration is one. The feeling you just have to get that last four letter word down to get the last six letter word across. This is much akin to —in your opinion— unsolvable calculus problems, nonsensical philosophy theorems, and drawing a blue print then realizing when you're finished that the carbon was upside down.

The challenge. It is —practically— humanly impossible to pass up the chance to start (and finish) a crossword puzzle. Often, if not all the time, classes and professors present a challenge. There is the ever present challenge of getting the much craved "A" or just a good grade. Reading assignments on time and simply keeping up with the studying.

With both, an unequaled satisfying sense of accomplishment pervades when either is completed or accomplished.

The heat, the cold. The mod, the old. The sun, the hurricanes. We have it all year-round in New Orleans — a city of contrasts. The equestrian stands proudly in Jackson Square, the bag lady peruses the gutter-filled streets of the CBD and of course there is the excitement that transcends through Mardi Gras — it's all quite vile, it's all quite elegant. Indeed, this is a city of contrasts.

One professor in our own sociology department once referred to our town as a "third world city" — how pretentious, but oh so true. Those of us with cars cry as we make our way down Maple Street . . . time for new shocks, new tires, new Rabbit — or Porsche, as the case may be.

But this is one fun-filled city nonetheless. The bars (diverse in every way), the food, the Dome — it's all here. And afterall, where else could you have this much freedom at the mere and tender age of 18?

Campus Nite

Campus Nite presented a "once a year play" in their spectacular rendition of the 1954 Richard Adler and Jerry Ross musical The Pajama Game. The cast of this boy gets girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl back, play experienced the usual ups and downs of producing a live musical. The search for costumes, the hours of planning, the multiple attempts at learning the lyrics and choreography for "Once a Year Day" — it's all in The Pajama Game.

The cast of over 20 had their lines down, their blocking memorized, and their choreography planned. But just one night before dress rehearsal, plans of obtaining costumes fell through. They had a problem.

But like all great Tulane minds, the cast found a way. With the aid of the theatre and music departments and their personal wardrobes, the cast members were able to dress themselves in 50's garb.

The benefits from Campus Nite were present. Lighting and special effects artist Larry Politi partially fulfilled the requirements towards his Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in theatre through his work as lighting and technical director of the show.

The cast was special this year. Not only was it composed of different students from the entire Tulane community but homecoming queen Lisa Truley and Associated Student Body (ASB) president Rob Schultz graced the stage with their talents.

Also the cast provided a community service. They spent a Saturday singing showtunes for the elderly at Chateau Notre Dame, made possible by Community Action Council of Tulane University Students (CACTUS).

The cast worked hard together to produce an excellent show with many talented actors and technical members. They solved problems with uncanny professionalism. They benefited both academically as well as spiritually from this year's Campus Nite's production of The Pajama Game.

Dorm Life

What do you do when your Resident Advisor has disappeared from the face of the earth and the custodial staff forgot to stock your dorm with a fresh supply of toilet paper? Okay, it's unlikely, but, nevertheless, it's a chance you take when living on campus.

On the other hand, however, the convenience of never having to clean your bathroom is simply heavenly. Nowhere else can you have a shaving cream fight in the bathroom without the chore of cleaning up.

Nowhere else can you scream across McAlister at some, like, friendly, like, Newcomb-ite in Butler. And the latest ingenious idea that has surfaced (at least in the minds of the students) is the thought of making most of our dorms co-ed.

The tale of Tulane resort will further unravel as time goes by. In the mean time, some of us can continue to enjoy the weekly 4 a.m. fire drills and cold showers.

Is It Worth It?

Dishes pile up quickly. Sinks, bathtubs and toilets actually do need cleaning. These are a few lessons that many students often learn after their first or second year at college. It's called Apartment Life 101. And if you didn't miss Mom last year, you are sure to miss her after the first two days in a new apartment.

So, I present this question, is it actually worth it? Put it this way: there are no more RA's or SA's (not that we have anything against them) and often times land lords live a safe 20 miles away. Mr. Physical Plant is no longer around to decide when and for how long you may use your a/c or heat, though sometimes bills can be somewhat of a strain — in some cases, that is. Basically, it boils down to independence. Is it worth it? You figure it out.

Tulane Changes Its Eating Habits

This year marked a milestone in food service history at Tulane when Professional Food Management (PFM) was replaced by the Marriott Corporation as the provider of contract meals at the campus dining facilities.

With Marriott came several much-needed improvements. Gone were the old, punched-out "Bruff cards." Instead, computerized cards monitored each student's weekly meal consumption at either Bruff, the Parlour or the strikingly modern UC Marketplace. Students could also choose to put money into a Tulane Express account and purchase meals and snacks at der Rat and the Drawing Board in the architecture building as well as at other campus dining venues. "Rat pizza" was even delivered to dorm rooms of Express Card holders.

As always, Arby's and Dr. Banana's remained popular spots for quick meals and snacks, and many a student could be seen sneaking into the UC to satisfy a late night Tofutti craving.

Remodeling abounded on campus this year from the total renovation of the Josephine Louis dormitory to the construction of on-campus apartments, which will be known as Stadium Place, and the new building which will house the A. B. Freeman School of Business. And, unbelievably, there is more yet to come. It seems that three additional dorms are to be remodeled over the summer and available for occupancy by the beginning of the 1986-87 year. Stage by stage, campus regulars witnessed the progress of the Goldring-Woldenberg Building constructed for the business school.

But Don't Try to Park

It would seem to many that getting from place to place on a campus only 10 blocks long and three blocks wide was no problem — except at Tulane. The one-way streets and bizarre parking situation create quite a hassle for those trying to get to school early enough to make it to that class on third floor Gibson.

Parking is limited to Willow lot, a barren, oyster shell wasteland located in the far reaches of campus. Finding a space in the lot is one matter, but getting to class is another.

Bicycles, be they Peugeot or Huffy, are still the most popular modes, but skateboards and their accompanying Thrasher image and, yes, even the occasional roller skater can be seen cruising down the slope under Percival Stern.

And there's the prototypical freshman, running from Sharp with an overstuffed backpack, red in the face, puffing along in fear of being less than 10 minutes early for his class in the engineering building.

— Jayme LaCour

It seems that the best solution to the campus parking problem is to ride a bicycle. Every day, scores of students make their way up McAlister Drive to class.

Another unfortunate soul become a victim of a Tulane parking violation.

No Classes!

These were the words every student awaited as they watched their TV's for the final word. Finally, it was definite . . . no classes were to be held on the following day because of threatening hurricane Elena. Elena was one of three hurricanes to threaten the New Orleans area this year. Classes were cancelled twice because of hurricane warnings. Ironically, these days turned out to be the nicest of the semester.

Apart from those from southern coastal areas, a hurricane is an unfamiliar phenomena. Many people hurried to Winn-Dixie to stock up on canned food and bottled water. A few students decided to cover their windows with tape. Fortunately, all efforts were in vain, for each storm altered its course away from New Orleans. With luck, future storms will do the same, or not threaten the city at all.

Furry Friends

Although pets, aside from tropical fish, are forbidden within the dorms, many students do own one or two. Whether these people live off-campus or they don't mind the risk of a fine, cats, dogs and other animals are commonplace in the Tulane community.

Ever TGIF, a number of "quad-puppies" gather on the UC quad for an afternoon of playing and drinking left-over beer. Once in a while a cat or ferret may appear in someone's arms, but this is unusual and often attracts a curious audience.

There will apparently never be a shortage of pets on this campus. Fact is, nothing will ever deter students from sneaking in a furry critter or two.

WTUL MARATHON

The 16th annual WTUL Rock-on Survival Marathon was the most successful fundraising event in the station's history. Three disc jockeys went on the air for a 24 hour marathon shift each to solicit pledges for $10.00 per song to raise money for progressive radio. With pledges and concession sales on the quad during the accompanying 3 day live music festival, WTUL's staff grossed upwards of $30,000.

Disc jockey Peter Ward began the first 24 hour shift of Friday at noon as music on the quad started that afternoon with Dancing Cat/ A&M recording artist, Shad Weatherby and Uncle Stan and Auntie Vera. Two club showcases that evening featured the area's finest young rock and new music bands at Jimmy's club and an immensely successful reggae at Tipatina's featuring Ashanti Roy and the Congos.

Saturday afternoon found Peter exhausted and program director Kim Gelé taking the helm for her 24 hour shift. Live music on the squad continued with the Rafael Cruz Quintet and King Nino and the Slave Girls, both featuring WTUL music director Ivan Bodley on bass. Also adding to the festivities that day were the likes of the Petries, Brian Lee and the Jumpstreet 5, Gina Forsythe, and George Porter's Funksters. A hard core show at the Boot followed that night.

Sunday noon gave Kim her relief as the quad enjoyed music by Ellis Marsalis, Woodenhead, Ramsey McLean, The Pfister Sisters, with the Radiators capping off the day. Everyone went home tired and sunburned except Ivan Bodley who braved the elements in the remote disc jockey booth high atop the UC until noon Monday, still playing requests.

Never before has this event been so successful. And few are Tulane events of any caliber with community response of this magnitude. It was all due to an incredibly hard working executive staff under the guidance of media advisor Susan Summers; all of which were officially commended for their performance in a letter from Assistant Vice President of Student Affairs Gary Fretwell.

Howard Tilton: Our Studying Remedy

Studying is what supposedly occupies our time when we are not busy going to class or eating or performing other vital functions. To most, however, studying only occurs during exam times.

The library remains the most popular study spot and is, in itself, a study in social stratification. The third floor reading room and its spirited green and blue couches provide cozy conversation areas on this most social of library floors. The music library in the basement is for hardcore studiers only, with the fourth and second floors assuming a generic identity. The first floor continues to rival the UC benches as a meeting place, with the Xerox machines and card catalog as rendezvous points for non-bookish library goers.

Exam times are peak seasons at Howard-Tilton, with extended hours, crowded study areas and much hubbub in the basement snack bar.

Studying at home or in the dorm can be more productive, but going to the library is the way to study for most.

A Year

Kahane Banned from Speaking

The controversy involving the invitation by TUCP of the radical Rabbi Meir Kahane to speak on campus generated a furor within the university governmental structure and gained for Tulane national media attention.

The events began on October 15, 1985, when Vice President for Student Affairs Martha Sullivan asked that the Rabbi's invitation, which required her signature, be discussed at the next meeting of the Student Affairs Committee of the University Senate, Tulane's internal governing body. The committee voted to allow Kahane to speak in a debate format and approved additional security measures.

One week later, the full Senate, after a heated and passionate argument, voted to ban Kahane from speaking, citing the Rabbi's controversial views. The ASB and TUCP then lodged a formal protest to President Kelly and the Board of Administrators. Kelly then called a special meeting of the University Senate to reconsider the matter.

On November 19, the ASB, in an unprecedented move led by ASB President Ed Heffernan, voted to remove TUCP's invitation. The move came as a shock, as the ASB had conducted a poll two days before which determined that students favored Kahane's appearance. Speculation as to Heffernan's motives included his ties to the U.S. State Department and pressure from the administration. Heffernan, however, denied the allegations.

The next day, the University Senate overturned its previous decision. The issue was moot, however, as the ASB's decision to ban Kahane was upheld by its Committee of Constitutional Interpretation. Heffernan declined to substantiate his motives.

Kahane is a Zionist extremist who advocates the creation of a pure Jewish state in Israel. His characterization of Arabs as "dogs" along with other harsh stands has earned for him the disapproval of most.

Students realized this year that Tulane is not an oasis of calm in New Orleans, a city famed for its high crime rate.

Dorm Crime Wave causes stir

Three incidents involving dorm residents brought this issue to light. On October 15, an intruder entered Butler Hall and assaulted a freshman female resident in the bathroom. The victim was not harmed and her assailant freed her from the bathroom and then fled the building.

To allay the fears of the Butler residents, President Kelly paid a visit that evening, clad in formal attire, as he was attending a function at the time. The incident resulted in stepped-up security measures in Butler, Sharp and JL dorms.

The second incident occurred in a room in Sharp Hall and involved a Physical Plant employee who has since been dismissed.

The female occupant of the room returned from the shower on September 18 to find a black male crawling on the floor of her room. She ordered the man out and later discovered cash and jewelry missing.

One month later, a resident of the same hall spotted the man who fit the description given to her by the victim. The two freshmen then inspected their rooms and alerted their hallmates to do the same. Cash and a watch were found to be missing from two rooms.

The freshmen then notified security, and the suspect was apprehended in Sharp Hall. He was found to be in possession of the missing watch and an unspecified amount of cash. He was booked on one count of theft.

In February, yet another Sharp resident was victimized. On February 20, a male resident was held at gunpoint in a friend's room by a black male wearing a ski mask. Holding the gun to the resident's head, the assailant demanded money. The victim responded that he had no money on him or in the room. The assailant then left the room.

Although no suspects have been apprehended in the two cases of assault, security in all freshman dorms has been increased significantly. Incidents such as these was one factor which prompted the change from single-sex to co-ed freshman dorms for 1986-87.

Fires

Damage 2 buildings

Fire ravaged part of the 25-year-old University Center on July 19, 1985. The blaze demanded the attention of 15 firefighters using 14 engines. The fire department characterized the inferno as "a particularly smoky fire." There were no major accidents.

The fire broke out in the basement of the bookstore and burned out of control for two and one half hours. The basement area was heavily damaged, with the bookstore being gutted and the Hullabaloo and WTUL sustaining approximately $100,000 worth of damage. In all, the fire caused $1.5 million worth of damage to the UC, which was undergoing renovations at the time.

As the fire was found to have started in three different places, officials cited arson as the probable cause.

On January 24, another fire broke out, this time in the Richardson Memorial building, home of the School of Architecture. Students attending a slide show in the building's amphitheatre noticed smoke and the building was evacuated before flames consumed the center portion of the building. Officials blamed faulty wiring in the amphitheatre as the cause.

Although several classrooms sustained water and smoke damage, the estimated cost of the blaze was not very high.

Wins ASB election

Plans to renovate the venerable old stone structure were moved up on the overall campus renovation schedule. In the meantime, architecture faculty and students are having to work with the inconvenience of lost classroom space.

Robert Schultz, an Arts and Sciences junior majoring in political science, was elected ASB President in February over his sole opponent, Steve Schaumberg.

Although Schaumberg had the more impressive record and was supported by the Hullabaloo, Schultz's outgoing personality and aggressive campaigning won for him more support. The thrust of Schultz's campaign centered around revitalizing school spirit and student activity.

Only one candidate qualified in each of the four remaining elected positions and each won by default.

The first major accomplishment of the Schultz administration was the conduction of a referendum concerning a student recreation center. The referendum passed in April, with students voting to fund a recreation center with increased student activity fees over the next several years. The center is to be constructed on the present site of Favrot Field House and the tennis courts.

TULANE'S "HAMMAR-LOCK"

Bill Hammarstrom, Athlete of the Year, in mid-stride.

At first glance, Bill Hammarstrom looks like an average college student, relaxing on the quad with a beer. But this 6 foot, 145 pound grad student deserves a closer look. Hammarstrom was chosen the Tulane Athlete of the Year for his contributions to the Cross Country and Track teams. He is also the last Tulane Metro Conference Champion in any sport.

Bill has been running for the past nine years. His best events are the 800 meters and the 1500 meters. His reason for running? "I like to keep physically fit".

Modesty is a word to accurately describe Bill Hammarstrom. He shrugs off the decision to name him Athlete of the Year: "They just picked me— a lot of people do more than I do". He is also very supportive of team members and Coach Danny Theil. Hammarstrom describes Theil as being "Super! He emphasizes academics, first, always before athletics".

Hammarstrom says the biggest achievement he has gained through running is discipline. He says, "It's all relative to your pain threshold". Hammarstrom understands pain. One of his lungs collapsed in May of his junior year at Tulane, requiring minor surgery. The same lung collapsed again, this time needing major surgery. His only comment on the situation; "I never felt like quitting— I only worried if I could run again". Presently, he is recovering from more surgery, and the doctors say that he will never run competitively again. Tulane athletics and the world of running will sorely miss this fine competitor.

Women earn respect in first year

In the fall of 1985 the NCAA announced the beginning of a women's varsity cross-country and track team at Tulane University. With this announcement, nine women from the student body came out for the cross-country season.

In the early part of the season, the team encountered schools who were in a similar situation — they too were trying to develop a new program. This gave the runners who had never tasted competition a chance to experience it without being overwhelmed. The newly formed team won their first meet over Southeastern Louisiana.

As the season progressed, the competition became tough. This was especially true at the Azalea Invitational at South Alabama and the LSU Invitational in Baton Rouge. Many of the runners from these schools are on track scholarships and provided a different level of competition. However, a very talented runner from Tulane was prepared to challenge this high level of competition. Ernie Messenger placed first in the Azalea meet with a course record time of 17:51 and placed fifth out of 65 runners at LSU.

Strong efforts and a great deal of hard work and dedication came forth from all the women who participated in Tulane's first cross-country season. It was these members — Allison Markesbury, Funda Akdamar, Ernie Messenger, Renee Schnare, Susan Elby, Monica Dove, Ellen Rosenstock, Monica Omev, and Lisa Hutto who comprised this first team.

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS

"What motivates me to cheer? It's my sport, it's what I do." So says captain Roger Hayes. Cheering started for him and for the rest of the cheerleaders July 31, 1985, the day they came back to New Orleans and began practice. The squad travelled to Dallas for a week long cheerleading camp led by the National Cheerleaders Association long before any other students had returned to school.

The squad usually practices six hours a week to prepare new material for each game. "This is one of the most talented squads we've had yet at Tulane." They put that talent into a three minute routine to submit to the National Cheerleaders Association national competition. The routine combines all aspects of cheerleading; cheers, chants, pyramids, stunts and dance.

The cheerleaders are pleased with the recognition they have received this year from Mack Brown and the Athletic Department. Brown attends each pep-rally, usually with a busload of football players. "We've even been on the Mack Brown Show. . . He has really supported us a lot" says Hayes.

As a group, they are disappointed in not having a men's basketball team to cheer for. "In the arena, you cheer and see results; the crowd cheers with you. You don't see those results with football games."

Nationally ranked Wave Swings into the NCAA's

Coach Joe Brockoff led his baseball team to the best season in Tulane's history, racking up an impressive 46-13 regular season record and reaching the South Regional Final before losing to archrival LSU. In reaching the regional final, Tulane was one of only 16 teams to advance that far. Of those 16, eight go on to Omaha, Nebraska for the College World Series. Unfortunately, Tulane was one game short of that final destination.

The season started off in grand style celebrating the opening of Phase I, part of the new $1 million Tulane diamond. President Eamon Kelly threw out the first ball as Tulane went on to beat Spring Hill College in their new home. Phase II calls for a permanent 3000 seat concrete covered grandstand to be completed next year.

Tulane rolled off nine quick wins including victories over nationally-ranked Arkansas and Houston, and won the Louisiana Classic baseball tournament at USL before losing their first game in Baton Rouge to LSU.

Chris Rivette led the early season surge by batting a cool .583 with the help from Gary Desjardins (.368) and first baseman John Reich (.357). Freshman Glen Leveau and senior Mike Borgatti led the then undefeated pitching staff.

The Green Wave continued to roll through the middle of their schedule winning 14 of 15 games at one point and winning the California-Riverside tournament, which included such top-notch teams as BYU and Notre Dame. The team was now boasting a 28-5 record and ranked 13th in the nation.

After an 8-2 victory over University of West Florida, Coach Brockoff reached yet another milestone, picking up his 400th career victory. At this point, Dan Wagner was leading the surging Green Wave attack with 8 homeruns, 42 RBIs, and a .402 batting average. Tommy Little and Mike Borgatti led the pitching staff. Little ran his record to 6-1 with a team-leading 2.23 earned run average. Borgatti raised his record to a perfect 6-0.

Tulane finished the season strongly, once again claiming the Pelican Cup from UNO. The Wave, however, did suffer a couple of tough losses to 2nd ranked Florida State in Tallahassee and a heart wrenching loss to #1 ranked LSU at home, 6-5.

The regular season ended on a sour note with a pair of losses to Southern Mississippi. However, a record of 46-13 was good enough to get the Wave an at-large bid to the South Regional at LSU.

The Wave started the double-elimination regional on shaky grounds, losing their opening game 7-5 to Louisiana Tech. However, the team quickly turned things around and went on to post victories over Eastern Kentucky, Oklahoma, and Louisiana Tech to reach the finals against nemesis LSU.

The final game, marred by rain delays, was taken by the Tigers 7-6. The team performed admirably and many felt without the momentum slowing rain delays, Tulane would have won the game. However, for now that will have to be the goal of next year's team. The Wave should be proud of themselves for a job well-done. We certainly are.

Down, but not out

In a 1-10 season, one would think there are not very many bright spots to highlight however, this is not always the case.

True the Wave's record left little to be desired, but rather than dwell on a game by game description of losses, lets look at some of the outstanding individual performances of the past season.

The word defense is spelled by Mack Brown B-U-R-N-E-L-L D-E-N-T. The Green Bay Packer bound Dent shattered the all-time Tulane tackle record by registering an unprecedented 492 tackles in his four year stint at Tulane. Dent was the ultimate defensive player and many feel he will go on to bigger and better things in the NFL. Burnell was also voted to the 1st team All-South Independent and an Associated Press Honorable Mention All-American.

Mack Brown's substitute word for reception was Z-E-N-O. Marc Zeno set single-season reception records in catches and yardage, with 73 receptions for 1137 yards. Zeno also set the single game record with 13 catches for 208 yards against LSU. Zeno was constantly ranked in the top 10 in the country in catches-per-game and a 2nd team All-South Independent as well as an Associated Press Honorable Mention All-American.

Senior quarterback, Kenny Karcher, moved into second place among Tulane's passing records for yardage gained. Karcher, who was a Denver Bronco draft choice, along with stand-out freshman Terrance Jones, led a potent Green Wave passing attack. Jones became the first freshman in Tulane history to total over a 1000 yards in total offense.

Another talented freshman, place-kicker Wayne Clements, was a bright spot in a rather bleak season. Many were looking for Clements to become another Eddie Muarry, of Detroit Lion fame, however, Clements is leaving Tulane to search for fame and fortune in his home state of Texas. His leg will be sorely missed in Tulane's lineup next year.

So, as you can see, a 1-10 season does not have to be so bad. Look for Mack Brown to turn things around quickly. Coach Brown is still one of the best things to happen to Tulane athletics. Don't be surprised if this team ends up in a bowl game in the next two years. At least, lets hope so.

Hours of practice, chlorine drenched hair, blood shot eyes, and still more practice is what it takes and more to become a member of the Tulane swim team.

All of these long hours of practice paid off for both the men's and women's team. The men's team, ranked in the top 40 in the country, compiled a record of 9-5 and broke 14 Tulane records. The women's team had 7 wins, their most ever, and erased 19 Tulane records.

The women's 400 Free Relay team placed 29th at the U.S. Nationals. The team included swimmers Laura Lebeau, Ann Carter (team captain), Tia Kaiser, and Andrea Kriek.

Awards for the women's team this year included: Star swimmer — Perry Loop, Hardest Worker — Kathy Thomas, and Most Improved — Tia Kaiser.

The men's team placed 5th at the NIC championship, only 2 points behind 4th. This year's captains were Mike Baele, Greg Lamb, and Rob Clark.

Tico Calzada, Brian Zielinski, Mike Baele, and Tom Bartsch received All-American honors for placing 16th at the NCAA championships. These 4 swimmers were the first All-Americans for Tulane in almost twenty years.

Outstanding freshman, Dave Bryan, broke three Tulane men's records including: 500 Freestyle, 1000 Freestyle, and 1650 Freestyle.

"It doesn't matter what the score is. It is if you feel good about it — that's the thrill." So says Brad Hubbel, spokesperson for the Varsity Diving Team. The team is comprised of six members: Brad Hubbel, Mike Irish, Kurt Oakley, Sheila Lloyd, Karen Brechtel and Nani Owens. Hubbel sees the team as an extension of the Tulane swimming team. All the various swimmers travel together to competitions and encourage one another.

Hubbel says of Diving coach Grace Gainer, "She's spunky. She helps out in any way she can". Her style at practices is one of reinforcement and repetition. The team clocks in six to ten hours a week from early September until March. The season starts in November, and the team travels to an average of three meets per month.

In diving competitions, there is a scoring scale of 1 to 10, with ten being the best. There are three judges, whose scores are added. The total is then multiplied by the DD (degree of difficulty) of the dive. To get the final team score, all individual scores are added, and the highest score wins.

Hubbel, always optimistic by his own admission, is not one to look at disappointments often. He calls diving "a fascinating sport — there are so many branches you can explore. As long as you keep at it, there's nothing you can't do."

VOLLEYBALL

Lady Wave Spikes Way Into Record Books . . .

Now that women's sports is on the upswing at Tulane, the Lady Green Wave Volleyball team has become an integral part of the athletic program.

The Lady Wave has many proud achievements to boast during the 1985 season, including a first place finish at the Jacksonville University tournament and two second place finishes at the Sam Houston tournament and the South Florida tournament, respectively.

With an increased number of practice hours, toughened strength training program and improved coaching techniques, the Lady Green Wave showed their colors by tying the Tulane's women volleyball won-loss record. Thus, the team ended their season with a record of 28-9, with only one home loss.

The outstanding season can be credited to the stability and all-around playing ability of the team members. The use of a strong offense, varied with fast, middle attacks and outside power-hitters, was aided by the skills of a great setter and improved defense, consisting of high blocks and precision passing.

A major factor that led to the Lady Wave's success this season was the ability of all players, which could be seen by the ease of replacing players in different game situations. Their athletic abilities attracted record crowds with the help from loyal fans and the Booster Club.

With only one senior and five juniors, the winning squad of women looks forward to another winning season next fall.

Member of the 1985 Lady Wave volleyball team are Judy Amerson, Melaney Amos, Dee Dee Dornan, Rene Douglas, Sivi Elsonsohn, Amy Gernahuser, Laura Grazulis, Patricia Hotard, Kim Howard, Kristen Ohland, Trisha Plumb, and Carolyn Richardson.

Sara Shlagman, one of four seniors and new career rebounding leader for the Lady Wave, takes the ball up strongly inside for two.

Team spirit, hard work and new coach Joline Matsumami led this group of women to a record tying 16 wins.

New coach, old faces spell win

The 1985-86 women's basketball team played what many believed to be the best single season in the school's history.

Under the direction of first year Head Coach Juline Matsunami, the Lady Wave compiled a fine 16-11 record, equaling the 1979-80 team's all-time record for most wins in a season.

Matsunami came to Tulane from the University of Washington, where she helped the Lady Huskies to a 26-2 mark, a Nor-Pac Conference title and a national ranking of 11th in both AP and UPI polls.

With ten players returning to this year's squad, Matsunami was confident she could make a winning team out of the 6-22 Lady Wave of last season. And that is exactly what she did.

In addition to tying the records for most wins in a season, the Lady Wave saw new individual marks set for most career rebounds and for most career points scored.

Senior center Sara Shlagman broke the career rebound record of 594 held by 1981 graduate Terry Johnson. Shlagman pulled down 15 boards in the season finale against Nicholls State giving her 606 career rebounds and the school record.

Earlier in the season, Lady Wave guard Stacey Gaudet shattered the career scoring mark of 1,363 points held by 1984 graduate Daryl Kimche. Gaudet, just a junior this year, also tied the school record for most points in a single game, scoring 34 points on two different occasions.

Gaudet and six other lettermen will return next year to try for a second straight winning season under Matsunami.

Graduating along with Shlagman are guards Paula Brown and Missy Palman and forward Sharon Duclos.

In the final game of the season, Matsunami started all four of her seniors along with Gaudet against Nicholls State.

"If we were going to win or lose it was going to be with my seniors," Matsunami said, "And they came through — they had an opportunity to let the lead slip away and instead they built it up."

Coach Matsunami and her Lady Wave should be proud of this season's accomplishments.

Late Season Surge

The men's team finished the 1986 season with a respectable 13-13 record, behind the leadership of team captain Rick Bogard and steady number two seed Chris Walker.

The team came on very strong towards the end of the year, especially the play of senior Scott Eversole. The team lost several close matches that could have gone either way.

The highlight of the year was the great exhibition match set-up to raise money for the team. This exhibition included a match between Tulane and LSU's number one doubles team, a 3 game doubles set with Jimmy Connors and Aaron Krickstein taking on local personalities, and a best of 3 sets singles match between Connors and Krickstein in the Tulane Arena.

Overall, it was an exciting year for the men's tennis team, and even more and better things are expected next year.

Volley, drop-shot, slice, knees bent, head-up these are a few of things one can hear head coach Peter Curtis telling his Lady Wave tennis team. This year's team compiled a fine record of 19-9, behind the steady play of senior captain Grace Fowler. The team was very well balanced this year, however, coach Curtis felt that doubles play could have been a bit better.

Renee Krickstein, sister of the world renowned tennis pro Aaron Krickstein, was a steady performer in the #1 spot again this year. She has a 47-13 record in three years at Tulane and is among the top 50 intercollegiate players in the United States.

At one point in the season, the women's match record was an impressive 110-33 for an outstanding percentage of .769. Coach Curtis can only expect better things in the future from his solid team of women.

GREEKS: The Way They Are

From serious students to serious partiers, run the gamut at Tulane University

It is uncanny, really.

Though a whopping fifty-five percent of Tulane women and another forty percent of the men are active members of the university's Greek System those outside of this closed society are usually more than a little suspicious, if not intimidated, by Tulane Greeks.

Why is that? Many have argued it is because the greeks are indeed different from their non-greek peers. The unequaled experience of a close brotherhood or sisterhood that begins with pledgship is an unusual one, for it is something that never ends. Once a Greek, truly then, always a Greek.

Of course, greeks and non-greeks intermingle academically, extracurricularly, and socially. Greeks are not eliteist in and of themselves. But, they are drawn to people who have had similar experiences, particularly the intense pledge period. Thus, the perceived clique is formed.

And why not? Greeks, like all Tulane students, are special. Perhaps their difference is that they are "special" together, so loud and so close.

ONE MORE TIME

Greeks welcome Alpha Omicron Pi and Sigma Alpha Mu back to Tulane

Brian Hughes

Tulane University welcomed back to its Greek system two of the oldest (and strongest) organizations nationally, Alpha Omicron Pi and Sigma Alpha Mu ("Sammy") fraternity.

AOPi was initially founded at Newcomb College in 1898, only one year after the sorority's national founding at Barnard College of Columbia University. The group, which disbanded in 1976, came back in full force with nearly 40 members who actively participated in panhellenic activities.

SAM was founded at Tulane in 1920 and stayed strong until the early 1970's. After some determination, SAM re-joined Tulane's fraternities with over twenty members involved in intramurals, service functions and the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC).

The two latest additions to Tulane's Greek system join a thriving and cohesive body always willing to accept new (or in this case returning) organizations so long as they enhance the long, strong tradition that is the Greek system. In which case, AOPi and SAM should have no trouble fitting right in.

—Richard Pérez-Feria

Learning

Outside and inside the classroom greeks often turned to professors.

Much to the surprise and delight of Tulane's faculty, Greeks on campus consider themselves (and indeed are) students first. In light of this, Tulane Greeks hold faculty and their mutual understanding of the fraternity and sorority system on campus as being paramount in maintaining the good relations they have enjoyed through the years.

Open sorority lunches for the faculty and the popular annual Delta Tau Delta fraternity's faculty Bar-B-Que truly illustrate the greeks commitment to keeping their favorable relationship with Tulane's faculty.

Since so many of the current school's faculty are themselves greek, it only follows that those faculty members support the Greek System. Non-greek faculty is the challenge Tulane's organizations strive to win over. Fighting long-held beliefs and misconceptions is never easy, but Tulane's Greeks are confident — with the supportive faculty leading the way — that the other faculty members will see the other side to Tulane's greek organizations.

WHAT A RUSH

Beginning every school year, greeks anticipate the competitive search for new members.

Oh, my! What a wonderful time to be a freshman at Tulane.

Before you know it, Rush Week descends upon freshmen with a WHAM, WALLOP (and usually) a THUMP.

For the eager, cocky and yes, nervous 18 and 19 year old men, RUSH starts the difficult and selective process which typifies the Greek System.

The sororities are all pomp, circumstance and tea as they welcome the expectant young women full of dreams of becoming the newest Pi Phis, AEPhis, Kappas or any of the five other sororities on campus.

This past fall, the fraternities "endured" a semi-dry Rush (alcohol could only be served on weekends); but still enjoyed a healthy, competitive battle for the best men Tulane had to offer.

The anticipation of "bid day" is perhaps unmatched for a campus co-ed as they find out the options left open to them in the Tulane greek world.

But, despite the anxiety, Rush represents all that is good about Greek life on campus.

—Richard Pérez-Feria

Phi Mus welcome prospective rushees during the first series of sorority parties.

Chi Omegas celebrate together on the final day of rush with their new pledges.

Delt Robert Van Wynan expresses his opinion after a successful rush party.

Let's Party

During the week, studying was a must, but on the weekend, no one played like the Greeks.

Bill Leffler, Julie Mirshak, Michelle Block, Greg Calejo, Bonnie Lipman, Paul Davidson, Alyssa Gusman and Jeff Bey know better than to drink and drive.

Girls just want to have fun . . . at SSIP.

Leffler

Eric Fredrick shows he's ready for a good time during the Delt semi-formal/semi-nude party.

Kappa Fina Johnson finds her own party with a bottle of Jägermeister.

A LENDING HAND

During the year Greeks make community service their business.

It is sometimes easy to forget, really. If forced to think fast and describe Greeks at Tulane, most of us could mention the parties, their togetherness, the parties, the third floor of the library, and of course, more of those parties.

It is indeed easy to forget or overlook the tremendous amount of service Tulane's social fraternities and sororities donate to the school and to the New Orleans community at large. Philanthropy, happily, is alive and well in the Greek system.

Delta Tau Delta won the coveted CACTUS Cup, which is given to the fraternity with the most community service for the academic year.

All fraternity pledges join forces in early fall and spring for the annual can shake to raise thousands of dollars for the leukemia foundation. From campus blood drives to helping battered women, Greeks at Tulane put their best foot forward and lend a needed helping hand.

FRIENDSHIP

Very Important to all Greeks are the lifelong friends gained inside and outside the community.

Bill Leffler

Gregory Calejo

Larry Block

Wasn't it awkward? It probably started on the Riverboat party as you spilled your drink on that shy New Yorker who lived on your hall in Sharp, Butler, or J.L. Awkward at first, but, thank God the ice was broken.

Arguably, the one thing that we will remember long after Finite Math problems, the flaws of both Marxism and Capitalism or even 'the' winning Market Strategy is, of course, our beautiful, worried, hysterical, messy and problem-filled friends we have met.

You know who they are. The ones who wake you up at four in the morning to tell you about his girlfriend problems (needless to say, he does not apologize). The one who borrows money the day after your parents' check comes in. The ones who walk in your room without knocking. You know, the ones you're going to miss like hell itself.

A special note must be added for the pledge brothers and sisters. This (by all accounts) singularly unique Greek experience develops a band of common survival that stays with you, quite literally, forever.

The only explanation for this trio is brotherhood.

ZBT, Joel Epstein, is always willing to carry a friend in need.

Bill Leffler

Nothing beats a hug from a friend. Not Frusen Gladje ice cream. Not a sale at Bloomingdales. Not even TGIF. Nothing.

GREEKS BID FAREWELL

After Years of Hard Work and Dedication,
Dr. Karlem Riess Retires from his Position as Advisor to Fraternities

The inevitable has happened to Tulane's greatest champion of Greek organizations, Karlem Riess. Dr. Riess, Tulane's advisor to fraternities for an unprecedented 37 years, has retired from that position. Needless to say, his contribution and dedication to Tulane's fraternities is still felt and appreciated. Simply, Dr. Riess was a fraternity man's friend, confident and, when needed, an advisor as well.

Riess, a Tulane '35 and Brown University '43 graduate, returned to his alma mater to become a physics professor, upon receiving his Ph. d. from the latter institution.

As for the Greeks at Tulane, Riess believes they are "very healthy." He said that Greeks "are building back" from a slow period (1970s) and should continue to grow" into the 1990s.

Though Riess will continue in his capacity as advisor to honor societies, it will not be the same for Greek men. Dr. Riess, a fraternity man himself (Phi Kappa Sigma), will be sorely missed by the thousands of young men whose life he has invariably touched and influenced. Goodbye and good luck to Tulane's greatest fraternity man. The Greek System is forever indebted to one, Karlem Riess.

EVEN STRAIGHT A'S CAN'T HELP IF YOU FLUNK TUITION.

Today, the toughest thing about going to college is finding the money to pay for it. But Army ROTC can help—two ways!

First, you can apply for an Army ROTC scholarship. It covers tuition, books, and supplies, and pays you up to $1,000 each school year it's in effect.

But even if you're not a scholarship recipient, ROTC can still help with financial assistance—up to $1,000 a year for your last two years in the program.

For more information, contact your Professor of Military Science. ARMY ROTC. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

A Mardi Gras parade goer bundles up a little one while waiting for Rex to pass and throw them somethin'.

A Jefferson City Buzzard celebrates Mardi Gras as every marching club does, with kisses and flowers.

During those hot months in New Orleans, nothing tastes better than a cold sno ball.

Graduation. That moment in time that marks a miles milestone in a student's life. Seniors wonder how their four years have gone so quickly, though there were times that studying seemed endless. All of the all-nighters and no-doze nights are finished. Deciding whether to join your friends in the French Quarter or to study more for Spanish is a thing of the past.

As seniors worry about their future in "the real world" there is a sense of gratification and great achievement. There is a sigh of relief. Seniors don't have to pre-register for fall classes. The thought of finally finishing the last class and the last final. A cap, gown and diploma awaits the graduating senior.

Along with the relief and exuberation of graduating comes the fears and anxiousness about being part of the working world. There is saying good-bye to those friends who have seen you struggle for four years as have you seen them. You have shared many fantastic times and have learned from them. But those things that you've learned both inside and outside the classroom will help you after you leave.

So with a smile on your face and a diploma in hand, the graduate is off to find fame and fortune, or reach another goal, but the memories of Tulane will remain as will the lessons learned.

Colophon

Volume 91 of the Tulane Jambalaya was printed by the Delmar Company in Charlotte, North Carolina. Paper stock is 80 pound enamel. Cover material is 78335 green Sturdite. The Tulane University crest was custom designed and embossed. Shoe grain is used on the cover. Gold metalay was applied to all copy on the cover. The title of the book, Jambalaya '86 is in Park Avenue type style.

The endsheet is parch blue #138. On the front endsheet is the theme "Once in a Lifetime" which is blind embossed. The theme was decided and agreed upon by the entire editorial board.

Body copy is set in 10 point Palantino with a two point leading. Captions are in 8 point, photo credits in 7 point, italic, and folios in 7 point Palantino. Headlines vary from 24, 36, or 54 point Palantino. Additional type used include Times Roman Bold Italic, Century Schoolbook Bold, Coronet, and Benguiat Book Italic.

Photographs were taken by staff photographers except the last page. John Martinez and Jerry Lodriguss of Folsom, Louisiana shot the photo of Haley's comet. All black and white photos were processed and printed by the staff in the media darkroom. Color slides were processed by Colorpix, Inc. in New Orleans, Louisiana. Individual school portraits were taken by Varden Studios of Rochester, New York. The advertisements were collected and layed out by Collegiate Concepts of Gretna, Louisiana.

The Delmar Company printed 1700 copies of the Jambalaya. Individual copies were sold for $26.

I finally made it here. The pages are completed and I can relax. But I wouldn't have made it this far without the help and support from many people. The list may seem endless but y'all deserve to be recognized.

First and foremost — to my two sets of parents who were always there for me during my trials and tribulations with constant guidance and a hug. I will always love you Dr. & Mrs. Walton Stevens and Ms. Mae and Mr. C (Papa) Brigham.

Second but as important — my staff. We did it. For all those days and nights we struggled in the basement or having fun doing labels, I thank you for memories that are burned in my brain. We can all be proud of this book and the hard work and dedication it took to create. Thanks.

To Marcey and Larry — you managed to stay in the same room as me while I panicked about deadlines. You made me laugh when I needed it the most. But are we having fun yet?

To Tom — Without you to handle that part of the yearbook, I would be too lost to save. The moral support system network will still be there in years to come.

To Joe — Whenever you want to take a trip to North Carolina, just call. I might feel the need to run through an airport again.

To Steve, Anne and S Scott — Y'all added to the book more than by working on it. Your hard work and dedication made it fun this year.

To Greg and Holly — I couldn't have asked for better friends to work on the yearbook with. We made it through four years here and those good times will come again. Get the champagne out.

To Jessica and Richard — Many great times have been spent in the basement. Thanks to y'all, I realized I'm not made for dusting and filing.

Third — to my family at Mae's: Terry, Louise, Pat, Billy E. & H., Bobby & Bert, Gary, Karen and the rest of the clan, thanks isn't enough. Y'all gave me encouragement and more love than any one person could ask for or deserve. Those late nights or rather early mornings will never be forgotten. Y'all let a displaced Northerner into your warm Southern lives. Those times and your hugs will be sorely missed.

To Susan — you were always there when I needed a sounding board, and I appreciate it greatly. You are more than an adviser to me and for the entire basement.

To Darren S. — What is left to say, but "now I know what you went through last year." Good luck next year in getting that well deserved Pacemaker.

Not to forget those people who made my life easier — Frank Myers and Sherry Breneman of Delmar and Joel Siegel of Varden Studios, you always had the right answer to calm me down. Y'all made this job less terrifying.

To those people who I have forgotten (you know I need a social secretary) but who have helped me, I send a special thank you. My four years at Tulane and in New Orleans have challenged me and given me confidence to accept or face any new adventure. Greet each day with a smile and be grateful to experience it, because each day is a "once in a lifetime" happening.

Another year has come to pass. The events on 1985-86 at Tulane have ended. With the coming of Haley's Comet, something that happens "Once in a Lifetime" history was made. So long my friend, for good-bye seems too permanent. And if our paths are destined to meet again may we greet each other with a smile and know that we are still friends. Until then, keep riding your rainbow, looking for that pot o' gold.
Live to Love,
Love to Enjoy,
Enjoy to Live.
